Professional Biography:

Jennifer is a founding member of C3i and a Risk Manager. She brings 15 years of experience in guiding design professionals and contractors through insurance and risk issues, including coverage and contract reviews to adequately address exposures and satisfy their contractual requirements, including reviews of, and implementation when required, of non-insurance risk management alternatives.

Assisting clients in their journey from contract design through project completion is both challenging and rewarding. Jennifer applies a holistic approach to the process, educating and advising throughout and providing clients with risk management avenues that steer toward fairness for all parties involved. Proper management of professional services contracts for design clients and advice on appropriate contract types, forms, editions, contractual terms and conditions for use on projects between their clients and consultants is central to her approach.

Her services also include providing operational and strategic risk consulting services to design and construction industry clients to assist firm principals in determining the strategic direction of their companies. Providing detailed analysis of the operational and strategic risk associated with their business operations by reviewing internal procedures, management operations, senior level oversight, quality assurance / quality control (QA/QC) techniques allows the firm to employ supplemental control measures to further mitigate exposure to loss.

Jennifer also held a role as managing partner in a continuing education company focused on providing continuing education to design professionals nationwide. This role allowed her to use her leadership skills to create programs worthy of an audience on a national scale. The skills learned in this role allow C3i to offer on-demand and scheduled live and virtual education and training sessions for groups of firms and their consultants or for specific firms depending on need. Education topics vary and encompass best practices, general risk mitigation, contractual, technical, and management issues, QA/QC, procedures, and record retention.

Jennifer's educational background, particularly in language and critical thinking, has shaped her approach to contract and project review. Her management and leadership experience afford her the skills to effectively negotiate for her clients and guide all parties through to a positive conclusion.
